American Board of Wound Management

The American Board of Wound Management (ABWM) is a voluntary, not-for-profit organization established for the purpose of credentialing interdisciplinary practitioners in the field of wound management. The organization was founded by individuals with years of experience in wound care who are dedicated to helping patients who suffer from acute and chronic wounds of various etiologies.

The Board of Directors is an interdisciplinary panel of experts in the field of wound care consisting of practitioners, academicians and researchers. The American Board of Wound Management is a full voting member of the Institute for Credentialing Excellence (ICE).

The purpose of the American Board of Wound Management is to establish and administer a certification process to elevate the standard of care across the continuum of wound management. The Board is dedicated to an interdisciplinary approach in promoting prevention, care and treatment of acute and chronic wounds.

Exams offered by the ABWM are national accredited by the NCCA. The National Commission of Certifying Agencies (NCCA) accredited programs certify individuals in a wide range of professions and occupations. To date, NCCA has accredited approximately 330 programs from more than 130 organizations. Accreditation for professional or personnel certification programs provides impartial, third-party validation that your program has met recognized national and international credentialing industry standards for development, implementation, and maintenance of certification programs.

The Institute for Credentialing Experience, or I.C.E., is a professional membership association that provides education, networking, and other resources for organizations and individuals who work in and serve the credentialing industry. I.C.E. is a leading developer of standards for both certification and certificate programs and it is both a provider of and a clearing house for information on trends in certification, test development and delivery, assessment-based certificate programs, and other information relevant to the credentialing community.

Wound Management Board Certification

The Application for Certification and any information or material received or generated by the ABWM in connection with the certification process will be kept confidential and will not be released unless such release is authorized by the candidate or required by law. However, the fact that an individual is or is not, or has or has not been, certified is a matter of public record and may be disclosed. Finally, the ABWM may use information from applications and examinations for the purpose of statistical analysis, provided that the personal identification with that information has been deleted.

The content of the Certification Examinations is proprietary and strictly confidential information. Examinees may not disclose, either directly or indirectly, any questions or any part of any question from an examination to any person or entity. Examinees may be disqualified from taking or continuing to sit for an examination, or from receiving examination scores, if the ABWM determines through either proctor observation, statistical analysis, or any other means that he or she was engaged in collaborative, disruptive, or other unacceptable behavior during the administration of or following the examination.

The unauthorized receipt, retention, possession, copying or disclosure of any information materials, including but not limited to the content of any examination question, before, during, or after the examination may subject candidate to legal action. Such legal action may result in monetary damages and/or disciplinary action including denial or revocation of certification or re-certification.

American Board of Wound Management Board Certification

About the Certified Wound Care Associate® (CWCA®)

The Certified Wound Care Associate (CWCA) credential demonstrates that the health professional possesses distinct and specialized knowledge in wound care. Board certification is voluntary and is not required by law for employment in the field, although some agencies may use board certification as a basis for employment, job promotions, salary increases, and other considerations.

It is important to understand that passing the examination verifies a certain level of knowledge in the field of wound management. It does not confer to the CWCA any permission to manage wounds beyond the limitations of the individual's professional practice.

Boundaries of practice are determined by state practice acts, not the certification examination. Job descriptions and job functions are determined by employing agencies, not the CWCA certification.

By certifying an individual as a Certified Wound Care Associate (CWCA), the American Board of Wound Management and its affiliates assume no responsibility for the action or activities of a CWCA and are released from all liability in any practice decision made in the delivery of wound care services.

ABWM provides equal opportunity to all applicants without regard to race, color, religion, age, sex, national origin, sexual orientation, physical or mental disability, veteran status or other legally protected categories.

Objectives of Board Certification

To advance wound management as a professional discipline by:

- Identifying knowledge that is essential to the job of wound care associates.
- Advancing cooperation and information exchange among the many disciplines and organizations involved in wound care.
- Recognizing those who meet the eligibility requirements for certification.
- Encouraging continued professional growth and development of individuals and the field of wound management.
- Raising standards and elevating the importance of ethical behavior among practitioners and researchers, by requiring the Certified Wound Care Associate to adhere to a strict code of ethics and professional standards.

ABWM Administration

Attainment of Certification, Renewal, and Re-certification

The application and required documentation will be reviewed for completeness and appropriateness by the Executive Director who will recommend to the ABWM Credentials Committee approval or denial of the candidate's eligibility to sit for the National Board Certification Examination for the Certified Wound Care Associate. Those candidates who successfully complete the eligibility review and pass the written examination will be presented with the Certified Wound Care Associate (CWCA) credential. Immediately upon completion of the examination, candidates will see their results on screen and receive a printed score report before leaving the center.

Candidates successfully completing the requirements for certification shall be recognized Associates of the ABWM. A suitable certificate bearing the seal of the American Board of Wound Management shall be inscribed with the name of the candidate. New Associates will be mailed a Welcome Packet from the ABWM including a Welcome Letter, Press Release, Employer Advocacy Letter, CWCA Pin, and CWCA Patch.

A Certified Wound Care Associate shall be required to pay annual renewal fees to ABWM. A Certified Wound Care Associate must demonstrate a minimum of six (6) hours of continuing education per calendar year in the field of wound management. These hours can be achieved by attending live courses, participating online, through correspondence or by any continuing education organization. The sub-mission of Continuing Education Units shall be made with the annual renewal form. Continuing Education Units are subject to audit.

Review Material

In compliance with National Accrediting Standards, the ABWM does not provide review materials for the certification examination. It is the responsibility of the candidate to prepare by any means they feel are appropriate.

Examination

The CWCA examination is based on a job analysis (also known as a practice analysis or role delineation study) that is conducted periodically to determine the job content elements that are related to effective job performance. The results of this study are used to develop the content outline for each examination, and all versions of the examinations correspond to these specifications. More information about the job analysis is available at www.abwmcertified.org.

An interdisciplinary team of CWCA's supervised by the ABWM Examination Chair and Pearson VUE constructs the items included in the examination.

The Examination Committee meets two to three times a year to review the items and the examination itself for validation. All examination materials are under the control of Pearson VUE, and Examination Committee members do not have copies of notes from these committee meetings. Pearson VUE also runs statistical analysis on each examination and examination items to validate their effectiveness as examination questions.

The examination consists of 120 multiple-choice items (questions), 100 of which are used to compute candidates' scores. The examination includes 20 non-scored 'pretest' items that are interspersed throughout the examination. Pretesting is a common practice for certification examinations, which allows for evaluation of the items prior to using them for scoring. Performance on the pretest items does not affect your score. The examination covers five subject areas as described in the Content Outline on page 4.

Time Allocation for the Examination

Candidates are allowed up to two and a half (2.5) hours to answer 120 multiple choice questions for the examination.

Admission to Testing

Applications will be reviewed by the ABWM to verify that candidates meet the eligibility requirements. Once an application and documentation materials are submitted, individuals will be notified by Pearson VUE of the following:

- IF ELIGIBLE: You will receive a notice from Pearson VUE within 15 business days of the receipt of your completed application.
- IF NOT ELIGIBLE: Your certification fee, less a $100 processing fee, will be returned to you with a notice of ineligibility.
- FAILURE TO RECEIVE ADMISSION NOTICE: A candidate not receiving an admission notice after being approved by the ABWM should contact Pearson VUE by calling 833-918-2566.

Re-testing Policies

Candidates who do not pass the examination are eligible to re-take it 30 days after the date of their last examination, and up to two years after the date of their first examination. Candidates must file an ABWM Re-test Application and pay a $150 re-application fee each time they re-test. Those who do not re-test within two years of their first examination must re-submit the application and examination fee in full. Any candidate who does not achieve a passing score after three attempts must submit documentation of 20 hours of continuing education in wound management to the ABWM office prior to re-taking the examination a fourth time. The continuing education hours must be completed after the date of the candidate's last failed examination. An additional 20 hours of continuing education will be required for each additional attempt after a candidate's third failed examination.

Appeals Policy

NO APPEAL may be taken from an adverse decision based on an individual's receipt of a failing grade on an ABWM examination absent extraordinary circumstances, as determined solely by the ABWM. A full outline of the appeals process for adverse decisions affecting certification as a CWCA, CWS, or CWSP is available in the Forms section of www.abwmcertified.org. The following adverse decisions affecting eligibility or certification by the American Board of Wound Management are subject to appeal: adverse administrative decisions, adverse substantive decisions, adverse disciplinary decisions. Any request for review must be postmarked within 30 calendar days of the notice of adverse decision.

Report of Results

Candidates will receive notification of their results from Pearson VUE at the test center upon completion of the examination and can access your score report by logging in to your Pearson VUE account. Note: Examination results will NOT be provided over the telephone.

Your score report will show the total number of correct answers you provided, and the number of correct answers required to pass. The methodology used to set the minimum passing score for each examination is a criterion-referenced method known as the Angoff technique, established through a passing point study by a panel of content experts. The experts evaluated each question on the respective examination to determine how many correct answers are necessary to demonstrate the knowledge required for the designation. The candidate's ability to pass the examination depends on the knowledge displayed during the examination, not on the performance of other candidates. As new forms of the examinations are introduced, changes may cause one form of the examination to be slightly easier or harder than another form. To adjust for these differences in difficulty, a procedure called "equating" is used. The goal of equating is to ensure fairness to all candidates.

The content area scores on the score report are not used to determine pass-fail decision outcomes. They are only provided to offer a general indication regarding your performance in each content area. The examination is designed to provide a consistent and precise determination of a your overall performance and is not designed to provide complete information regarding your performance in each content area. You should remember that areas with a larger number of items (questions) will affect the overall score more than areas with a fewer number of items. The precision and consistency of scores diminishes with fewer items, and therefore, sub-scores should be interpreted with caution, especially those that correspond to content areas with very few items.

Confidentiality

It is up to each candidate to notify an employer or others as to whether you have passed or failed the examination. Upon written inquiry, the ABWM will release information regarding the status of an individual's certification only, withholding information regarding scores or if an individual took the examination.
